

This session will examine several of the essential ingredients for successfully achieving a sustainable nuclear technology. The presentations will include the role of nuclear technology in meeting the imperative for a low carbon future; the challenges confronting the current fleet of operating reactors and the strategies to keep them operating safely and reliably for the coming decades; the innovations in new-build to meet the evolving needs; and the importance of a healthy safety culture.